Every woman of refinement will appreciate "this year's best bargains." When the regular patrons of the Palais Royal's Lingerie Department learn that the annual June Sale begins its ending to-morrow morning the response will be as heretofore, prompt and enthusiastic. A word to those who are not "regular patrons"—many of the garments are somewhat tossed and tumbled, almost disreputable at first glance. Do more than glance—hypercritically examine the materials, the trimmings, and the needlework. Any garment pictured on this page can be yours to-morrow at 89c—and many others equally attractive.

See tables on first floor, northeast corner, and third floor, northwest side. Come with your purse, prepared to secure supplies for the distant future. Note—No garment sent on approbation or C. O. D. It's to be a closing sale—quick and decisive.

Do these illustrations tell you the true story—that these waists are of aristocratic lineage, and in no way relate to the plebeian and vulgar? They should.

To-morrow's early visitors will have no trouble in finding all sizes, both in the plain tailored and lingerie styles. Put money in your purse—this year's best bargains are here.
